Our aim is to interview people in economics, area studies, and in the related social sciences for positions with this Agency involving economic research on the economies of the Sino-Soviet Bloc countries. We get most of our people from economics and area studies; very often, however, we find individuals in business administration, history, geography, or in other areas who are interested in our work and who do very well at it. We need people who can do good research of the kind required, for example, in writing an M.A. or Ph.D. thesis, or for that matter in preparing scholarly works for publication generally. We are looking for Government career people, and of course, for those who like full-time research. Our principal interest is in graduate students, but we would be glad to talk to any undergraduates who might wish to speak to us. Since we have quite a long lead time, we are looking for people for employment next spring or early summer, rather than right away.

We would prefer, if at all possible, to interview only candidates of whom you know and would therefore prefer that you not make any general written announcement of our visit. We do hope, however, that you will discuss our requirements with your faculty colleagues and enlist their support in recommending qualified candidates.

I am certainly looking forward to seeing you on this trip, whatever or not we have occasion to interview any of your students. In the meantime, with every good wish.

Sincerely yours,

Distribution;
